A VISIT TO WOOD COUNTY, OHIO.

A vacation being given us at the recent meeting of the consistory, we, the parson and his wife, took our departure for the west on the morning of the 9 inst. We had three objective points, in view, the Heidelberge University, our alma mater, located at Tiffin, Seneca County, Ohio; the World's Fair, and friends living in Wood County, Ohio.

We first stopped at Tiffin and were entertained here by our good brother, Rev. J. A. Peters D. D., who is president of the University, and was formerly pastor of the Shiloh Reformed Church at Danville, Pa. We will not soon forget the kind attention of this good brother and the pleasant interview with former teachers and students. As we spent our college and seminary days at this institution which now has first class buildings, we felt that we indeed were very much at home here amidst familiar scenes and associations.

Our visit to Chicago we will not now attempt to describe, but will confine our remarks to Wood County, Ohio. As we alighted from the cars at Deshler, where we expected to take a train to Weston, we were agreeably surprised to see Mr. J. Howard Kline and Mr. A. H. Kitchen who had driven there to meet us. We were soon seated in the new carriage of Mr. Kline and on our way to his home, a distance of nine miles. The latter part of our drive was very much accelerated on account of an approaching shower which overtook us when we were a few rods from home. As there had been no rain for weeks, it was natural to associate this rain with our coming. As there is so much that is of interest in Wood County, I shall be obliged to treat my subject somewhat historically.

Less than fifty years ago the whole of Ohio had been settled and occupied except a section in which Wood County is located, then familiarly known as the Black Swamp. The great question for Legislative solution was, what will we do with the Black Swamp? Some portions were prolific in prairie grass, and other portions were heavily timbered, but the land being level and very wet, it could not be drained or inhabited. The perplexing question of utilizing the Black Swamp was finally solved by the proposition to dig several large and deep ditches through these lands. This proposition was accepted and effectually carried out. Some of these ditches are as wide and twice as deep as the common canal. Into these county ditches the township ditches flow; and into the township ditches the farmers run their surface and underdrains. Underdraining or tiling is necessary to successful farming in this county. The tile used here is from two and a half inches to five inches in diameter, and one foot long. The average size can be bought for nine dollars per thousand, and one thousand will drain about 60 rods. It costs about as much to lay the tiles as it does to purchase them. Using 500 tiles to an acre, it will cost $3 to tile the same. When the tile is properly laid, it will last for years. As phosphates are not used on tiled lands, it is much cheaper in the end to tile in Wood County than to phosphate in the east. The soil in this county is a black loam with a clay subsoil. It is rich and will produce abundant crops if properly tiled, indeed not a few farmers burn their straw.

This county is a great place for raising cabbage. We have seen a number of large patches, some of which contained ten acres. To see a ten acre field of cabbage must be pleasing to the lover of saur-krout. Agents buy up this cabbage at $12 per ton in the field and ship it to distant points. Usually the cabbage field will average $60 per acre.

Hay in new meadows averages three tons per acre, and oats about forty bushels per acre. The wheat crop was good here this vear. The yield is from 17 bushels to 35 bushels per acre, and averages in the county 25 per acre. Mr. Howard Kline had eight acres out and received 193 bushels. On a neighbor's farm we saw a one acre patch which yielded this year 42 bushels.

The mammoth clover is raised here for the seed alone. All over the county we saw large fields of this product in process of being cut or threshed. The yield is from 3 to 9 bushels per acre, and sells at about $5 per bushel. Corn, however, seems to be the principle cereal product of this county. Wherever you go or look, you can see corn fields. From Deshler to the home of Mr. Kline, a distance of nine miles, one half the fields on either side of the road are on an average corn fields. Sometimes the corn fields were so connected as to form one continuous stretch of corn for two or three miles. The corn field of Howard Kline contains 25 acres and was planted by his son Walter, who is sixteen years old. In planting this field he used no marker, only a hand planter and four stakes by which he could see to walk straight. The rows are 90 rods long and without a crook. The corn in this field is about ten feet high and is considered among the best in the county. Three bushels in ears will produce two bushels shelled corn. In all our travels this year, we have nowhere found the corn as good as in Wood County. The corn which is produced so abundantly in Wood County is either manufactured at home into pork or sent to any convenient R. R. town where it is readily disposed of at the market price.

While Wood County has perhaps neither coal or iron, it has an abundance of natural gas and oil. We traveled from Bowling Green, the county seat, to Welker, a distance of 13 miles through the very heart of the gas and oil field of Wood County. At no time were we out of the sight of the towering derricks and very often we could count from one point of observation 25, 50, 75, and even 100 derricks. At Cygnet and Oil Centre, we saw large tank farms. A tank farm is land occupied by large tanks, on an average one tank to an acre. A single tank holds about 35,000 barrels of oil. It is not unusual to find fifty of these tanks in one field. This oil is conveyed to remote cities by R. R but also through underground pipes to Cleveland, Toledo and Chicago. In this section is found also an abundance of natural gas. Some wells produce oil only, others gas only, while others produce both oil and gas. The gas is conducted in pipes to Tiffin, Toledo and other neighboring towns, and is used for fuel.

The smell of natural gas and oil to a man prospecting for either on his own land is pleasant, but to the man who is not particularly interested in either, its odor is like the fumes of a ruptured antiquated egg.

A picnic trip to the Maumee river was arranged by Mr. Kline and lady in the interests of their guests from Pennsylvania. A few of their neighbors were invited along. We had a delightful drive of seven miles to the river, and on the bank of that celebrated stream we pitched our tent and made our coffee. After dinner, some strolled along the river gathering beautiful shells, others engaged in boat riding, and Walter and the writer engaged in fishing. I was anxious to catch a few specimens of the fish that inhabit this river. The fish seemed to understand my desire, as I succeeded in catching only one of a kind. In this river I observed something that was amusing. Three men were fishing with a seine in the interest of science (?) As they were dragging their seine we observed a bass occasionally jump over the net, but as they turned their net toward the shore, there was a general jumping of the bass over the seine, and when it was finally drawn to shore, it seemed to contain every kind of fish except the bass—every bass escaped. Some of the bass would jump out of the net, and then make two or three more jumps toward deep water. They evidently wanted to be sure that they were out of the net. Toward evening we started for home, and after driving a few miles, we observed that a spindle of a wheel was smoking. I thought, now we are in a plight. But Howard, being equal to the emergency, called to his better half, "Maggie, is there any butter left?" The reply being "yes," the wheel was taken off, and was not greased but buttered, and we were soon on our way again.

During our stay in Wood County, we had the pleasure of visiting Mr. Abraham White and Mr. Joseph H. Sands, who formerly came from Columbia County, and all of whom we are happy to report are doing well. We appreciated very much the kindness of our Wood County friends, and will vouch for the hospitality of Messrs. Kline, White and Sands to any visitor from Columbia County. These gentlemen and their estimable wives know how to make it pleasant to any Pennsylvanian that may come that way.

Orangeville, Pa., Aug. 25.

Frank Chromis lost one of his big bay horses Friday of last week. He took several barrels of coal oil to Millville. When he left the town he noticed the horse was sick, but thought a light drive home would not hurt it. The horse died soon after reaching home.

Harvest Home services were held at the Reformed church last Sunday. There was a large attendance. The church was beautifully decorated with fruits and flowers.

SUNDAY NEWSPAPERS.

AN EFORT MADE TO STOP THEIR SALE.

NEXT SUNDAY THE LAST DAY.

On Sunday last the patrons of Elmer Brugler, agent for the Sunday newspapers, were informed that after next Sunday no more papers would be sold. This action was in pursuance of a notice served upon him, a copy of which notice was printed in full in the COLUMBIAN a few weeks ago. It is an appeal to all business men to close their places of business on Sunday, and to abstain from secular work on that day. It contains a suggestion that the law may be enforced against all who violate the act of 1794. That law reads as follows:

"If any person shall do or perform any worldly employment or business whatsoever on the Lord's Day, commonly called Sunday (works of necessity and charity only excepted), shall use or practice any unlawful game, hunting, shooting, sport or diversion whatsoever on the same day, and be convicted thereof, every such person so offending shall for every such offense forfeit and pay four dollars, to be levied by distress, or in case he or she shall refuse or neglect to pay the said sum, or goods and chattels cannot be found, whereof to levy the same by distress, he or she shall suffer six days' imprisonment in the house of correction of the proper county. Provided always that nothing herein contained shall be construed to prohibit the dressing of victuals in private families, bake houses, lodging houses, inns and other houses of entertainment for the use of sojourners, travelers, or strangers or to hinder watermen from landing their passengers, or ferrymen from carrying over water travelers, or persons removing with their families on the Lord's Day, commonly called Sunday, nor to the delivery of milk or the necessaries of life, before nine of the clock in the forenoon of the same day. Provided always, that every such prosecution shall be commenced within seventy-two hours after the offence is committed."

The notice above referred to is signed by the "Sabbath Protection Committee of Bloomsburg" and the "American Sabbath Union". No individual names appear, neither of the officers of these organizations, nor of the members of the committee. If the efforts to stop the sale of newspapers on Sunday be laudable ones would it not be well to have the public know who are the active persons in this movement?. THE COLUMBIAN will be glad to print the names of the committee whenever it can obtain the necessary information.

There are some laws that are more honored in the breach than in the observance, and the law of 1794, so far as it is applicable to the sale of papers on Sunday, is one of them. When that law was passed nearly a century ago, the puritanical notions of the Pilgrim fathers were prevalent. There were no Sunday newspapers in existence, and but very few dailies. There were no railroads, and the papers received a week after publication were looked upon as "news". The world has changed since then, and the ideas of progressive people have changed with it. All the great dailies now publish Sunday editions, which contain the news of Saturday, and unless business men and all others who wish to keep informed of the world's doings read the Sunday papers, they lose the news of a day. We cannot see what harm is done by the reading of Sunday papers, nor what great good is to be accomplished by their suppression. People will read on Sunday, and if they can't get good wholesome newspapers, they will buy the trash that is sold on Saturday as Sunday papers, full of sensational stuff, or devote their time to novels and yellow covered literature. No one not otherwise inclined, will be driven to church by shutting off his Sunday paper. We believe in Sunday laws, we believe in the proper observance of the Sabbath, but we also believe that more harm than good will result from the enforcement of the law so far as newspapers are concerned, and we believe that a large majority of the business men of this community feel the same way.

BE REGISTERED.

The last days for the registering of voters are Wednesday and Thursday, September 6th and 7th, between the hours of 10 and 3, and from 6 to 9 in the evening. Don't forget it.

EAGLE'S MERE STORM SWEPT.

WIND'S PECULIAR PRANKS

The storm of Sunday evening assumed cyclonic proportions as it passed over Eagle's Mere, and the wind cut up some most peculiar pranks in the short space of time that it was with the popular mountain resort, says the Gazette & Bulletin.

Happily no lives were lost, but there were some very narrow escapes, and property was damaged a good deal.

The storm was accompanied by thunder and lightning that was most intense, while the wind blew a gale, and every one at the resort was more or less scared during its prevalence. The path of the cyclone was a most peculiar one, confining itself to the vicinity of the Hotel Raymond. The wind first struck the barn in the rear of the cottage of Dr. G. D. Nutt, of Williamsport and scattered the timbers and boards in all directions. Half of them cannot be found. Then the gale circled around the cottage of Frank Gould, of Philadelphia, located between Dr. Nutt's and the Raymond, chopping off Mr. Gould's porch, on the side next to the hotel, en route. The wind next sailed across the street and hit the cottage of Mrs. Spencer, of Philadelphia and which is opposite Dr. Nutt's. The cottage was almost completely wrecked.

The hurricane just seemed to knock the props out from under the Spencer cottage, as it were. The wind got into the first story and that collapsed in less time than it takes to tell it, letting the second story drop to the ground. On the first floor there were a lot of young people, including some Williamsporters, who had called, and they made some narrow escapes. Some of them were bruised, but all escaped serious injury. It is said that one young lady was blown out the door.

Judge Wilson, with his family occupies the Spencer cottage, and the Judge, who was also on the first floor, sustained a cut in the back of the head. Mrs. Wilson was on the second floor engaged in putting the children to bed when the cottage was wrecked, and when that portion of the structure dropped to the ground so suddenly the crash never woke the babies, who were sound asleep. The top of the cottage alighted in a slanting position, one edge resting on the porch of the cottage next door, and those up stairs were taken out the second story windows. Mrs. Wilson sustained a bruised nose.

After doing this damage the storm swept across the lake and was lost to view in the night, without doing any further work of destruction.

A Williamsport gentleman who was at Eagle's Mere over Sunday and saw the storm, says that it was the most beautiful electrical display he ever witnessed.

"The storm struck Eagle's Mere between 9 and 10 o'clock," said the gentleman, "and I saw the funnel-shaped cloud that is said to come down on the earth and grab things. Then it sounded as though a train of cars was rushing through the place, but of course there were no cars. The wind blew a gale, and it was two hours after the storm before the population knew what had happened. It was a terrific storm, but was fortunately confined to a small space, and the escape of the people in the Spencer cottage was miraculous."

The cylone missed Highland Lake entirely, and while there was some rain at that resort there was very little wind, no damage whatever being done. No reports of any damage in that region, other than at Eagle's Mere, have been received.

ATLANTIC CITY EXCURSION.

On Thursday morning last despite a pouring rain, a crowd of nearly one hundred excursionists left on the Reading Railroad for Atlantic City. The excursion train started from Jamison City, picking up passengers at Benton, Orangeville and Lightstreet. Bloomsburg was well represented. Precisely at 6.10 the train consisting of five coaches started from Bloomsburg. A good run was made to Tamaqua where the party was joined by a special from Williamsport consisting of twelve coaches well filled. We arrived at the new depot at Philadelphia at about 2.30 when the party separated, some taking the train for New York, others strolled around the city. At four o'clock a portion of the crowd again met on the Ferry boat for Camden City; a few minutes more and all were aboard the cars for Atlantic City. After a delightful ride, we landed at Atlantic City, where accommodations were obtained at Hotels Ashbure and Osborne After a little delay supper was ready, and the party sat down to a substantial meal. Blue fish was in great demand, and here let us inform our friends who like fish, if they want to eat Blue fish go to Atlantic City, where they know how to cook them to perfection. After supper a stroll to the Beach was taken and many for the first time saw the great Atlantic Ocean. The roar of the surf was listened to with great interest while the rolling in of the white capped waves was a source of surprise to our friends from Fishingcreek. A promenade down the plank walk, which extends for six miles was taken, and visits made to the various places of amusement. No matter where you stopped you could see some of our party either on the Ferris Wheel or whirling around on the Carousel or flying down the toboggan slide—old and young seemed to be enjoying themselves to the musical strains of "After the Ball."

The attractions are too numerous to mention; if you want to see handsome women, elegantly costumed, in fact the typical American Summer Girl you should take a walk on the promenade at Atlantic City. I fear that some of the party became dazzled as I am sure they did not retire as early as they do when at home at their rustic homes up the creek. On Friday the party could be seen during, bathing hours, some costumed in bathing suits, others looking on in surprise as they did not know their neighbors ever took a bath. The writer could enumerate many funny little adventures as some of our friends little thought there was a "chiel" among them taking notes, however every body seemed to enjoy themselves, and enjoyed the healthful ocean breeze. We understand the party are indebted to W. H. Smith of the Benton Argus for making the arrangements and looking to the comfort of the excursionists in general, and we feel satisfied that should another excursion be arranged to Atlantic City from this county, your correspondent and many others will certainly join the crowd.

J.

E. RODMAN DRINKER.

It is with sorrow that we record the death of Edward Rodman Drinker, whose sufferings ended last week Thursday afternoon at 5 o'clock. For several years his health has been failing, and his death was not unlooked for. His age was 62 years, 9 months, 19 days. Mr. Drinker was a son of Richard Drinker, and was born in Luzerne county, November 5, 1830. In 1846 he came to Bloomsburg with his parents, and was employed as office boy at the Irondale furnace. Subsequently he was made book-keeper and filled that position for nearly thirty years, when he was made superintendent and remained so until the Company sold out to Knorr & Wintersteen. Since then he has had an interest in the Hess Manufacturing Company.

Mr. Drinker had been for many years a member of the St. Paul's Episcopal church, and for more than thirty years a vestryman. He had been the Senior Warden for many years, and held the position up to the time of his death. Until within a short time he was one of the most liberal contributors for the support of the church and was one of the leading spirits in the erection of the present church building which was completed in 1870. For a long time he was Superintendent of the Sunday School; and year after year he was chosen as a lay deputy to represent the parish in the Diocesan convention, and he was always in his place. For five years he was a member of Town Council.

Of his father's family there remain Francis P. and M. C. Drinker of the town, and two sisters who reside in Scranton.

He was married in 1859 to Martha Mendenhall who survives him, with three children, namely Edward W. Division freight agent of the Lehigh Valley R. R. at Wilkes-Barre; Richard C. residing at Bethlehem, and Lydia W. who resides with her mother.

Mr. Drinker was a warm friend, a good citizen, and affectionate and indulgent husband and father.

The funeral took place at the house on Saturday afternoon at 5 o'clock, and in the absence of the rector where a telegram failed to reach him, the services were conducted by Rev. John Rockwell of St. Gabriel's, Sugarloaf.

About thirty people went from Bloomsburg on the excursion to Atlantic City last week Thursday, and returned on Monday. They report having a good time. James Cadman who was in the party says that he came near being drowned in his efforts to rescue four ladies who got in the undertow. No lives were lost.

Elmer E. Mears' new house on Fifth street is completed, and he has moved into it.

THAT BOSTON MAID.

That Boston maid I much admire because she puzzles me.
Profound she is in commonplace as well as repartee:
Of sunset or of promenade, of snowstorm or of dew,
Her speech is polysyllable, and thus is ever new.

We walked together—she and I—one evening in the rain,
And saw a rainbow afterward. And yet it were quite vain
For me to try to translate her. "Aqueous vapor," "hue,"
"Prismatic arch concentric"—these, perhaps, will give a clew.

Like other maids, she loves ice cream, and soda water, too;
But in their nomination she is apt to rattle you.
"Congealed confection" is the one, and I am not quite sure
Just what she calls the other in her pet nomenclature.

Though angular in speech, she is a pretty girl to see,
And therefore I admire her much, although she puzzles me.
Propose? I dare not; yet of life a year or two would give
To know just how she would frame yes—or yet a negative!

DAWSON'S UMBRELLA.

And Miss Lovelock's Provision for a Rainy Day.

Patter! pat! pat! The rain was pouring down on the glass portico. A sudden storm had swept up out of a clear sky. Everyone was caught unawares. The stray cabs were seized in a moment, the omnibuses crowded before you could look around. There was actually only one umbrella in the stand by the door of the Cafe de Luxe. I stood, in a new hat and a light gray frock coat, and eyed the umbrella speculatively. I knew the owner. He had just gone in to lunch. He was a large and long luncher. I was in a hurry. Perhaps the storm would pass. I could send it back by a commissionaire. I was very apt to take cold, and my appointment was really very important.

Thus prompted of Satan, I put my hand toward the umbrella. At the moment I perceived, like a stage villain, that I was observed. In fact, I was not alone. A young lady of most attractive appearance stood a few feet from me, almost under the portico, gazing wistfully out into the wet. She wore a summer costume. She looked at her watch, then again at the storm, and murmured, disconsolately: "Oh, I shall be late." An instinct of generosity overcame me. Without another thought for my sensitive chest or my light-gray suit, with a firm proprietary air, I laid hold of Dawson's umbrella.

"Allow me," said I, "as cabs seem unattainable, to offer you an umbrella."

A glad light leaped into her eyes. "Oh, I couldn't," she said. "What would you do?"

"I don't mind a wetting," I answered, heroically. "Pray take it. You can send it back here at your leisure." (Dawson could not have much more than finished his soup.)

"I couldn't think of it," she repeated, "You will get soaked through."

A sudden thought struck me. After all, I had no business to lose sight of Dawson's umbrella.

"Perhaps," I ventured to suggest, "our roads lie the same way. It's a large umbrella." And I opened it. It was not a very large umbrella; but how could I know that?

"I go this way," said she, with a motion of her hand westwards.

"My way," I cried. "Come, this is providential."

We started.

"If you wouldn't mind taking my arm," said I, "we should be better sheltered."

"Oh, perhaps we should. Thank you!" and she nestled quite close to me. We walked along talking. My left shoulder got all the drippings, but somehow I was indifferent to that.

"Are you sure you are thoroughly sheltered?" I asked.

"Perfectly," she answered. "But you're not, I'm afraid. You're too kind. Mamma will be so grateful."

I liked this simple friendliness.

"I thought there was no chance of rain to-day. You are more careful, Mr. Dawson."

I could not repress a little start.

"You know my name?"

She laughed merrily.

"It's on the umbrella—half an inch long," she said; "I couldn't help reading it."

There it was—"Joshua Dawson, 4 Calceolaria Villas, West Kensington, W." Somehow the address annoyed me—I myself live in St. James street.

"A strange way to make acquaintance, isn't it?" she asked, with a coquettish glance.

"Delightful. But you haven't allowed me to make acquaintance with you yet. Haven't you your name anywhere about you?"

"My name is Lydia Lovelock," she said; "don't you like it? It's prettier than yours."

"Certainly prettier than Joshua Dawson," said I, wishing Dawson had chanced to be a duke.

"Joshua Dawson isn't pretty," she observed, with candid eyes; "now, is it?"

"Then you wouldn't take my name instead of yours?" I asked to keep up the conversation.

"Your umbrella's enough to take for one day," she said with a blush. As she spoke, she slipped and all but fell on the shining pavement. She gave a little cry: "Oh, my ankle!" and leaned heavily upon me. I held her up.

"I believe I've wrenched it badly," she added. "Oh, what a lot of trouble I'm giving you, Mr. Dawson."

She looked lovely. I give you my word, positively lovely—in her pain and distress. I don't think I said so; but I said something, for she blushed again as she answered:

"That's very nice of you; but how am I to get home?"

"I must come with you," I said.

She shook her head.

"I can manage now."

"But you'll never be able to get out."

"Oh, yes. But—perhaps—the rain's almost stopped—may I keep the umbrella? There are some steps to mount to our door, and—"

Now, could I do anything else than press Dawson's umbrella upon her? She took it and, with a last bewitching smile, vanished from sight. I turned and almost ran back to the Cafe de Luxe, determined to make a clean breast of it to Dawson. When I was fifty yards off I saw him under the portico. The manager and four waiters stood round him in disconsolate attitudes. One or two of his remarks—he was talking very loud—reached my ears. I changed my mind. I would wait till he was calmer. I turned away; but at that instant Dawson caught sight of me. A second later he was pouring the story of his wrongs into my ear.

Here came my fatal weakness. I let him go on. He took me by the arm and walked me off. I could not escape him; and all the way he thundered against the thief.

"If it costs me twenty pounds, I'll bring him to justice!" he declared. Really, I dared not break it to him just yet.

Suddenly, from round a sharp corner, there came upon us—almost running into us—Lydia Lovelock herself, with Dawson's umbrella in her hand. He had been narrowly scanning every umbrella we passed. He scanned this one, and cried, darting forward:

"My umbrella!"

With a little scream Lydia turned and fled. Dawson was after her like an arrow. I pursued Dawson. Why, oh, why, did she run away? Surely she must have recognized me.

It was a very quiet street we were running up, and our strange procession attracted little notice. The chase was soon over. I caught Dawson just as he caught Lydia. For a moment we all stood panting. Then Dawson gasped: "My umbrella! Thief!"

Lydia seemed very agitated. Of course I came to her rescue. Avoiding Dawson's eye, I hastily told my shameful tale. Lydia's face brightened, but still there was apprehension in her looks.

"This lady, believe me," I said, "is entirely blameless. Of course she thought the umbrella was my own. My sole consolation, Dawson, is to think that had you been in my place you would have done the same."

"I don't see," remarked Dawson, rudely, "why it consoles you to think me a thief."

I preserved a dignified silence.

"However," he continued, "if this young lady has quite finished with my property, perhaps she will be good enough to give it me back."

Lydia did not take the hint. She clung to the umbrella.

"If—if you would be so kind," she stammered, "as to lend it to me for to-day—the weather is still threatening—I would return it to-morrow."

"Your request, madam, is a modest one," answered Dawson, sarcastically; "but, as you observe, the weather is threatening and I want my umbrella. Kindly give it me."

"Really, Dawson, to oblige a lady—" I began.

"Why don't you buy her an umbrella?" sneered Dawson.

"If she would accept it, I should be—" I stopped. To my surprise, Lydia laid her hand on my arm and said: "Oh, do, please! And may I keep this till we get to the shop?"

I did not understand her; but we turned round and began to walk, looking for a shop. She was a very strange girl. She lagged behind; I had to wait twice for her. Once she took a turning as though to leave us, and when I called her back she pouted.

Suddenly Dawson looked up.

"It rains," he said.

It did.

"Put up the umbrella," said Dawson, roughly.

"Let the lady have it," said I, indignantly.

"We'll share it," grinned Dawson. "You can get wet."

But Lydia did not put it up.

"The rain's not much," she faltered. It was now pouring. With a muttered oath, Dawson snatched the umbrella from her. Lydia shrieked and ran away like a frightened rabbit—ran at the top of her speed up the street again.

"Stop, stop!" I cried. "Stop, my dear Miss Lovelock."

"Holy powers!" exclaimed Dawson.

He had opened the umbrella; as he did so there was a thud on the pavement—two, three thuds. In amaze I looked down. There lay a silver cigarette-case, two purses and a gold watch. Dawson burst into maniacal laughter as he pointed at Lydia's retreating figure. That girl could run.

For a moment I stood dumfounded. What a revelation! Dawson chuckled in Satanic glee. Sadly I stooped down and picked up the purses, the cigarette-case and the watch.

"Great ——!" I cried; and my hand flew to my waistcoat-pocket.

It was my watch.

I did not prosecute Lydia, because I could not have overtaken her, and for other reasons. It was altogether too sad, too disheartening, too disappointing a discovery. Dawson, however, observed that it seemed to him an excellent example of poetic justice in real life.—St. James Gazette.

Dust in the Air.

Natural science is not only occupied with great and important problems, but devotes considerable attention and thoroughness to very small ones. Angus Rankin has given two years of ardent study and research to the problem of dust particles in the air, and the result of his examination is that in mountainous regions six hundred and ninety-six particles of dust are allotted to each cubic half-inch of air in one year. In London one hundred thousand particles of dust fall to each cubic half-inch of air during the same space of time, and other large cities are not likely to fare better than this approximation.

HE WAS WELL FIXED.

A Candidate for Honors Among the Wall Street Magnates.

Before me on a western road sat two admirable specimens of the genus "hayseed." They were garrulous old chaps and talked and chewed tobacco as a school girl chews gum.

"I reckon we'll lose Ben Gross afore long," said one, branching off on a fresh topic.

"Eh?"

"Yaas—'t won't s'prise me a bit of Ben goes to New York an' speckelates."

"No; you don't say Ben's a gittin' 's rich 's that!"

"Wall, I guess he's 'bout the best fixed man in our place now, since W. F. Simpkins died."

"Ye don't say! How much d'ye s'pose Ben's worth now, biled down?"

"Wall, ye kaint jest tell. I know o' my own sartin knowledge he has over forty-five dollars in the bank an' his crop o' taters ain't dug yit. They'll bring him in right smart o' cash."

"Ge whiz!"

"Yaas—an' John Summers owes him three dollars and seventy-five cents on that old game of poker yit. He's slow, but he's good fer it, I guess."

The other was silent for some time, evidently ruminating upon such vast wealth. Then he suddenly inquired:

"W'at's he goin' to monkey with in New York?"

"I dunno. Wall street, like es not."—N. Y. Herald.

The Missing Link.

The hand-organ has often been voted a nuisance, but never before, probably, for the reason that it set up too high a standard.

"Why not?"

Dull and Contented.

GRAPHIC SKETCH OF THE PEOPLE IN A WELL-GOVERNED FRENCH-CANADIAN VILLAGE.

In the quiet village, where the good cure's word is law, there is likely to be little brawling and less drinking, for the French Canadians are neither quarrelsome nor intemperate. There may be a tavern, or perhaps two taverns, where not only guests are received, but where liquor is sold, but the cure sees to it that they are closed very early in the evening. Long before they are closed very early in the evening. Long before midnight the streets of the place are deserted, and a late wanderer need have no fear of drunken hoodlums. A well-governed French-Canadian village, where the cure is thoroughly respected because of his wisdom and piety, affords a decided contrast to many rural communities in English Canada and on our own side of the border.

The people are not enterprising. At least this seems to be true of all but a few exceptions. They are content to take what comes in their way, with the happy faith that the morrow will bring with it its daily bread. They are averse to breaking in new lands, and, as the families are large, the division of the farms generation after generation finally results in such small portions that some of the children must seek employment elsewhere if all are to live. Very few of them are willing to go to the new lands of Manitoba and the northwest, but they find congenial occupation in the cities. They are admirable mechanics and are most loyal and devoted servants, says Henry Loomis Nelson, in Harper's Magazine.

The Scotchman or Englishman who is at the head of a great establishment prefers the French-Canadians to his own countrymen as subordinates. He will tell you that the Frenchmen will remain with him all their lives; that no such thought as seeking new employment or leaving the old for the purpose of engaging in ventures for himself will ever enter a French-Canadian's head. He will stay by his old employer all his life, and his son will succeed to his own or a better place in the service of the house. On the other hand, the Englishman or Scotchman will take the first opportunity to go into business for himself, and will use his employment as the stepping-stone to something better.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars; free.

The Crown of Scotland.

IT IS SUPPOSED TO HAVE BEEN WORN BY ROBERT BRUCE.

A once precious diadem, which is now only an historical relic of much interest, is the crown of the Scotch kings, kept in the castle of Edinburgh. It is supposed, says the St. Louis Republic, to have been made for Robert Bruce, and is formed of two circles of gold, the upper and narrower circlet being surmounted by a row of crosses and gem-incrusted imitation flowers. The lower ring, the head band proper, is adorned from end to end of the golden band with large precious stones of different kinds, mostly in their rough, unpolished state. Above rise two arches of gold, which unite and are surmounted with the historic "cross and ball." Even when the Stuarts became kings of England they went to the trouble of going to Scotland to seat themselves for a few moments upon the celebrated "stone of Scone" and to have King Bruce's diadem pressed upon their royal heads. Charles I. declared his intention of removing Scotland's famous relic to London, so that such ceremonies could be carried out at home, but the sturdy Scots soon convinced him that such a proceeding would be an infringement upon their rights, so the king had to go to Edinburgh as others had done before. The wife of a preacher by the name of Granger once stole the Scotch crown and the other royal insignia—this in 1652 or 1653. At the time of the restoration they were transferred to Charles II. They were returned to Edinburgh castle in 1707, and have remained there ever since.

Fun For Little Japs.

STREET VENDERS GO ABOUT WITH CHARCOAL STOVES ON WHICH CHILDREN BAKE CAKES.

Japan has been frequently referred to as the "Children's Paradise," and with considerable justice, for in no other country is childhood made so much of, and are children surrounded by so many devises for their amusement. In every town, according to Dr. W. D. Eastlake in the Popular Science Monthly, there are numbers of street venders and hawkers whose sole customers are children.

One class of these venders carry two charcoal stoves, or furnaces, swung in the conventional manner of the country from the ends of a pole which rests across the shoulder. Arriving at a convenient corner, the load is put down, and a group of eager children quickly gather. For the moderate sum of one or two rin the children are supplied with a tiny cup of sweetened batter and a spoon. Thus equipped, they proceed to bake their own cookies on the smooth iron top of the stoves, fashioning the dainties into whatever shape they please, and, when they are crisp and brown, devouring them. The same vender also denotes his skill to children. His "stock in trade" consists of dried reeds and a quantity of midzu ame, a sort of malt paste. Some of the ame is put on the end of a reed and is molded or blown into some fantastic shape by the vender. The young customer dictates as to the figure, and butterflies, flowers, gourds, or whatnot are shaped from the sweet paste. The children, after having satisfied their taste for artistic design, eat their finished work, the reed handle preventing their fingers from becoming sticky.

There is another of the child amusers that can be seen in the streets of Tokio or any other Japanese city. This artisan molds fruits, flowers and vegetables from colored rice-flower dough, and does his work so deftly that it is really difficult to distinguish the artificial from the real fruit.

This universal love and regard for children is also displayed at every temple festival, where numerous booths, gay with toys, flags and games, form always a prominent feature.

Many people, not aware of the dangers of constipation, neglect the proper remedy till the habit becomes chronic, or inflammation or stoppage results. A dose or two of Ayer's Pills in the beginning would have prevented all this.

Celebration of Pennsylvania Day at the World's Fair.

INDUCEMENTS OFFERED BY THE PENNSYLVANIA RAILROAD COMPANY.

The World's Fair Commission having decided on Thursday, September 7th, as the day which they desire to have formally celebrated and designated as Pennsylvania Day, the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, in pursuance of its usual custom, takes pleasure in announcing that, for the benefit of those wishing to participate in or attend the ceremonies, the extremely low rate of one fare for the round trip will prevail from all points situated on that company's lines within the borders of the State.

Tickets for the occasion will be good only on the special train leaving Philadelphia at 11.30 A. M., September 5th, and reaching Lancaster at 1.15, Harrisburg 3.00, Lewistown Junction 4.30, Altoona 7.00, Pittsburg 10.25 P. M. Stops will be made at principal intermediate stations, and connections may be made from points on the branches of the main line. The composition of the train will be first class standard coaches, and ample accommodation will be provided for all who will avail themselves of the opportunity of showing their interest in an event so momentous as the commemoration of the Keystone State at the World's Columbian Exposition.

Chicago will be reached by the special train early in the afternoon of the next day, September 6th, and the return coupons will be good for passage on trains leaving Chicago at 3.15 and 11.30 P. M., on or before September 13th.

The inducements for the facilities provided in the train service over the Pennsylvania system, will doubtless be taken advantage of by the many Pennsylvanians who are anxious to show the pride they have for their native State.

I feel it my duty to say a few words in regard to Ely's Cream Balm, and I do so entirely without solicitation. I have used it more or less half a year, and have found it to be most admirable. Many of my acquaintances have used it with excellent results.—Ostrun, 45 Warren Ave., Chicago, Ill.

More Money in Circulation.

The increasing amount of money deposited in Denver banks is a happy assurance of a return of confidence and a promise that the financial stringency is a thing of the past. What is better, it is an indication that the people are loosing confidence in their woolen stocking banks.

The shipment eastward of much of currency paid out in Denver assures better times in the East as well as in the West. It will enable business men to more easily meet their obligations and the more readily conduct their business satisfactorily. It will also enable some of those who went out of business temporarily to resume and give immediate and steady employment to men who were thrown out of work by the difficulty in obtaining money.

This return of confidence, aided by the repeal of the purchasing clause of the Sherman law, will cause the financial depression to disappear like a troubled dream, with this difference that the experience will never again be courted by congresses or speculators.—Patriot.

An Important Event.

A PRINCE'S FOOTSTEP COMMEMORATED BY A MONUMENT.

Americans are not the only people who show an undue reverence for a lordly title. The author of "Around and About South America" tells of his visit to Stanley, Falkland islands, the southernmost town on the globe, where an incident convinced him that a name sometimes equals an event.

The decidedly English expression of the town is greatly heightened upon going on shore, where I land upon a small jetty, at whose extremity stands a pyramidal brick and stone monument, bearing on a tablet the rather inexpressive communication: "Alfred, 24th February, 1874."

Knowing that many nations had at different times claimed possession of these islands, and that several conflicts had resulted, it was but natural to suppose that this proud pile distinguished the spot where some British Horatius Cocles, had, single-handed, repelled the landing cutters of several French or Spanish men-of-war, and that his appreciative countrymen had thus made the fact known to such of the great world as might by accident stray thither.

The very first citizen I met I begged to tell me more of this brave, this doughty Alfred, apologizing, of course, for a memory defective in matters of historical detail. And my blood almost congealed within my veins and my heart stood still with awe as I learned that here, here on this very spot, a "real live" English prince had once set his foot, on coming ashore to pay a visit to the governor.

My informer stood solemn and serious, but there is no use in denying that I was profligate enough to laugh.

Police Court Incident.

From the Washington News.

Judge. "You are charged with beating your donkey cruelly. What have you to say about it?"

Prisoner. "Your honor, I had two friends in the cart with me, who were discussing the silver question. Right in the middle of their argument the fool donkey began to bray."

"And then?"

"And then I clubbed the beast; he didn't know any more about the silver question than my friends did."

"I guess the donkey got no more than he deserved. You are discharged."

The Fates Forbid!

In Chicago.

From the New York Sun.

The large, rough man from the mountains, with a pot of money on his person, was resting comfortably in an easy chair at the auditorium in Chicago, lazily watching the "help" tidying up the writing room.

"So," he said to the menial, "you call this hotel the Auditorium, do you?"

"Yes, sir."

"And you call one of them show buildings at the fair grounds the spectatorium?"

"Yes, sir."

"Well," and he stretched himself out a little further, "s'pose you shove one of them expectoratoriums over this way, I want to take a chaw of the week."

LONG ISLAND'S HORROR

Fourteen Killed in the Railway Wreck Sunday Morning.

LONG ISLAND CITY, L. I., Aug. 28.—An accident that cost the lives of 14 people occurred shortly after midnight Sunday morning in the little village of Berlin, near Calvary Cemetery, in the town of Newtown. The Long Island Railway train that left Manhattan at 11:15 o'clock was overtaken by the train that left Rockaway 15 minutes earlier. In the frightful collision that ensued the two rear cars of the five that made up the Manhattan Beach train were demolished and the middle car was overturned. Hardly one of the scores of passengers aboard these three cars escaped unhurt.

Following are corrected lists of the dead and injured:

Scenes of Horror.

The scene of the wreck was indescribably horrible. The dead and wounded were massed among the wreckage, beside, upon and beyond the tracks. Everything was showered with the blood of the dead and wounded, and the cries of the latter rose high above the hissing of steam and the calls of the frantic trainmen.

As fast as the wounded were taken from the wreck they were carried to the relief train and cared for.

When all the wounded had been found that could be, the relief train started with them for Long Island City. They were met there by the only ambulance which St. John's hospital owns. Two were placed in it and hurried to the hospital and the ambulance returned for more. Meanwhile express wagons, horse cars, coaches and vehicles of every sort was pressed into service to get the wounded to the hospital quickly.

Seventeen was taken to the hospital in all, of whom two died upon their way there. Oscar Dietzel, of 122 East One Hundred and Fourteenth street, and Thos. Finn, a brakeman on the Manhattan Beach train.

The dead was taken by another special train to Newtown which is the next nearest town to the scene of the accident, and placed in Skelton's morgue by order of Coroner Brandon.

Now that the truth is known concerning President Cleveland's illness, and the reason why he remained on Mr. Benedict's yacht four days without landing, early in the summer, those papers which accused him of being on a debauch at that time ought to feel very much ashamed of themselves. The whole country will unite in a sincere desire for his entire recovery, as any misfortune happening to him now, would indeed be a public calamity.

WASHINGTON LETTER

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28, 1893

No surprise was felt by anybody when the House passed the bill for the unconditional repeal of the purchasing clause of the Sherman silver law. So nearly all of the members had announced in advance how they would vote that the result was a foregone conclusion days ago. The man who accepts this action of the House as an indication that a majority of its members oppose silver as money makes a mistake. It indicates nothing of the kind. On the contrary, an overwhelming majority of the House favors bimetalism, as will be shown by future legislation. Those who voted for repeal did so because they agreed with President Cleveland in believing that the purchase of silver bullion by the government was the main cause of the country's financial troubles and that it ought to be stopped, if for no other reason, because the business sentiment of the country is so strongly opposed to it.

Although the Wilson repeal bill will now go to the Senate it is not probable that it will be acted upon, because the Vorhees repeal bill, with the clause declaring Bimetalism to be the policy of the United States, is already before the Senate, and is more preferable to the democratic leaders in the Senate. Although the opponents of unconditional repeal still maintain a bold front in the Senate, since the great silver speeches of Senators Vorhees and Hill, last week, both of whom took strong ground in favor of repeal, the sentiment in favor of repeal has been steadily growing, and it is now the general opinion that a majority of the Senate will vote for repeal when the bill can be voted upon, but when that will be no man can safely predict, certainly not until after there shall have been one of the most memorable struggles in the annals of the Senate, as the Senators from the silver producing States will make use of every known parliamentary weapon to prevent a vote.

The new rules for the House are a decided improvement upon those of the last session, although the changes have been few. Although few in number the changes are important and were all made with one object in view—the lessening of the power of filli-busterers to do mischief. One of the most far-reaching of the changes is that which makes one hundred a quorum when the House is sitting as a committee of the whole and gives this committee authority to limit debate, an authority which under the rules of the last Congress had to be obtained from the House, which could not act without the presence of a constitutional quorum.

The Senate has been, in accordance with its usual practice of taking things easy adjourning from Friday to Monday each week, but Senators Vorhees and McPherson, of the Finance committee, have given notice of the intention of that committee to oppose the loss of another working day until two bills reported from the committee shall have been disposed of. The two bills are those for the increase of national bank currency, and the repeal of the purchasing clause of the Sherman silver law. The first now has the right of way, but Senator Vorhees has said that he would move to side-track it and take up the repeal bill if any disposition is shown to use it to postpone action on the repeal bill.

Secretary Herbert can see no good reason why an agent of Carnegie Steel Company, even though that agent be a naval officer "on leave," shall be furnished free of charge with a desk in the Ordinance bureau of the Navy department, where he has access to all the plans of the department. So he has notified Lieutenant Charles A. Stone, the Carnegie agent, that he can no longer use the Navy department building for his private office.

President Cleveland returns to Washington this week to remain until the close of the extra session, and when that will be depends on the Senate.

It has not yet been definitely decided whether the House shall go right ahead with general legislation, or wait for the Senate to act upon the silver question, but it will be this week.

The House Ways and Means committee will, at its meeting this week, map out a tariff programme and decide whether the tariff shall be revised upon the information now at hand or hearings be granted to those interested in proposed changes.

The committee on Banking and Currency will this week decide whether a bill for the repeal of the 12x on State bank currency sha l be favorably reported to the House. It is stated that a majority of the committee is opposed to repeal at this time, largely because of the disturbed financial condition of the country.

CARLISLE TALKS.

NO ACTUAL SCARCITY OF MONEY.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28.—All the members of the administration took the greatest interest in the votes on the Wilson bill—Secretary Carlisle especially so. He received in his office in the treasury department the official announcement of the several votes as soon as they were flashed across the wires. When the first vote was received, which showed that free coinage at the rate of sixteen to one was beaten by 102 majority, he said the majority was greater than he had anticipated and that he would have been satisfied with sixty majority.

At the conclusion of all the votes Secretary Carlisle stated to a United Press reporter that he was very much gratified at the result and felt that it would do much to restore public confidence. He expressed the hope that the senate would take speedy action on the silver question.

In the course of a conversation Secretary Carlisle was asked if the present stringency was due to lack of money. He refuted the idea and among other things said: "No greater mistake could be committed than to assume that the present financial embarrassment is caused by an actual scarcity of money in the country.

The fact is that the amount of currency of all kinds in the country outside of the United States treasury on the 25th day of the present month was $58,452,350 greater than the amount oustanding on the first day of the month and $70,294,783 more than the amount outstanding on the first day of September, 1892, when business was active and prosperous. There is money enough to transact all the legitimate business of the people, but the difficulty is that it has been withdrawn from circulation and hoarded. The true remedy is to restore confidence and credit, and thus put the money now in the country in circulation again."

The Democratic judiciary conference of the Fayette-Greene district has failed to agree. The Greene county conferrees supported Judge Inghram, while those from Fayette stood by L. S. Mestrezat. The last named candidate proposed to submit the matter to a vote of the Democrats of the two counties, the expense of such election to be paid by the candidates. This was rejected by Judge Inghram and his friends on the ground that the conference was merely the creature of the primaries in the two counties and had no power to call new primaries. The conference adjourned finally without result, and both candidates will continue in the field. This means the election of the Republican candidate.

HORRORS OF THE STORM

Sad Havoc Along the Atlantic Coast from Florida to Maine.

NEW YORK, Aug. 29.—Meagre details are received this morning of a terrible cyclone at Savannah, Ga., which is reported to have killed forty people and destroyed property to the extent of $10,000,000.

The cyclone is described as unparalleled in severity and rapidly extending Northward.

The Weather Bureau reports that the hurricane centre has passed over orvery near Savannah, Augusta, Charlotte and Lynchburg, cutting off telegraphic communication with the South and West.

The gravest fears are entertained along the coast of a repetition of the horrors of last week's hurricane.

The Government Weather Bureau has sent out bulletins warning people that a terrific storm is approaching.

Telegraph wires are down and communication cut off with the South and West.

The outlook is very bad.

NEW YORK, Aug. 30.—Not for years has one storm so destructive followed another as the two just passed. Shipping men do not recollect any such tales of wreck and disaster at sea as have been brought into port during the past week, and now, before the tale of disaster wrought by one storm is ended, there comes a second storm more widespread in its fury and much more disastrous in its effect.

Hardly was the sea calmed and shipping men once more beginning to regain confidence in the weather when the hurricane of yesterday came roaring along from the southeast and struck New York shortly after mid night. At first there was only a high wind, but soon it began to rain and then the gale increased to a tornado of West Indian proportions.

The hurricane lasted with all its fury until about 1 o'clock, when the wind shifted again to the westward and the high seas gradually grew calm. Then traffic in the harbor began to be resumed and accounts of disasters began to come in from all quarters.

HAVOC AT SAVANNAH.

SAVANNAH, Ga., Aug. 30.—The list of fatalities is gradually growing, and it is impossible to tell to what extent it will reach. Several bodies of drowned persons have been picked up and search is now being made for others who are missing. Every hour seems to bring some new story of a death as a result of the storm.

The drowning of Mr. A. G. Ulmer, assistant cashier of the Central Railroad Bank, was one of the most unfortunate disasters of the storm. Mr. Ulmer owns a farm on Hutchinson Island, opposite the city, and had gone over to pay off his hands and attend to other duties. There were bruises on his face and it is supposed that he struck against an outshed when he jumped from his barn as it was about to blow down. Miller, his dairyman, has not been found and it is supposed that he was also drowned.

Other fatalities so far reported include 16 colored men. Two unknown sailors were drowned at Tybee Island.

Forty to fifty other perons are reported missing, and it is supposed, as nothing has been heard from them, that their bodies will be found later. Twelve barks and barkentines, which were anchored at Quarantine Station were blown high and dry upon the marsh and some of them were carried by the storm across the marshes on an island two miles distant from the station.

The tug Paulsen brought about 60 passengers from Tybee. Mr. Revers, one of them, stated that four negroes, engaged in clearing the railroad tracks were drowned.

A sailor and the cabin boy on the schooner Harold, which is on her side on North Beach, are drowned.

It is reported that eight of the crew of a terrapin sloop which went ashore on the south end were drowned.

The water swept with tremendous force over part of the island, railroad tracks being carried from 200 to 500 feet. The Chatham club house is badly damaged. The trains on all roads are coming irregularly and some have entirely stopped to repair washouts. The church steeples are demolished and at least 500 large trees were blown down.

More than 30 wrecks have been reported so far.

Fifteen vessels in the Tybee were wrecked or badly damaged.

DEVASTATION AT CHARLESTON.

CHARLESTON, S. C., Aug. 30.—The battle of wind and rain commenced with terrific force at 1 o'clock Sunday afternoon and continued without cessation until Monday morning at 7 o'clock. There was not 50 yards space in the streets that did not contain debris, such as roofs of houses, signs, awnings, telegraph poles, etc., which were scattered in all directions. It is reported that eight people have been killed in the city. It is also rumored that there has been great loss of life on Sullivan's Island, but inasmuch as all communication is cut off there is no means of verifying the report.

DELAWARE COAST.

LEWES, Del., Aug. 30.—Since 6 o'clock Monday night a terrible wind from southeast to south has prevailed in the vicinity of the Capes, and much damage to shipping off the coast is feared. The tug International, which was placed on the station of the Southern Five Fathom Bank in place of a sunken ship, parted her chains and lost an anchor during the night. She was compelled from the force of wind and seas to seek shelter at the Breakwater. Fishing schooner Ida Potter, of New York, dragged on the stone pile and sank. The crew got out on the rocks and were saved. The little schooner Harry, which has been trading between Lewes and Cape May, sank at the Breakwater. No lives are reported lost. Much damage has been done to fruit trees and large quantities of fruit are ruined. The International has returned to her station.

TRACKS UNDER WATER.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 30. — Railroad connection is cut off between the New Jersey coast points and Philadelphia. The railroad tracks of the Amboy Division of the Pennsylvania railroad are under four feet of water between Bayhead and Berkley. An attempt was made this morning to run a train from Bayhead to New York, but the water on the tracks was so deep that it put out the fire in the engine. The railroad company has sent out a big gang of men and efforts will be made to raise the inundated tracks. Trouble is also reported on the same division below Gradwick.

OYSTER BEDS.

NEW HAVEN, Aug. 29.—Heavy damage to property was done here by the storm. It is estimated that a hundred or more shade trees went down in the gale and chimneys and roofs were blown off in profusion.

The side walls of Proctor's Opera House were toppled over, and the steeple of St. Paul's Church was badly damaged.

The oyster beds are thought to be almost entirely ruined, though nothing authentic can be learned about them for several days. The harbor is unusually well filled with ships, which put in for safety and have remained all day.

NEW ENGLAND COAST.

BOSTON, Aug. 30.—The storm of yesterday was the worst known off City Point for twenty years. The water was terrible in its fury and the yacht club rafts and hundreds of boats anchored out in the bay were tossed about like cockleshells. The damage to yachts and small boats in this section is estimated at $10,000.

A number of wrecks are reported off Portsmouth, but the sea is so rough that tug boats and Isle of Shoals steamers have been unable to move out of the river.

From Portland and Augusta, Me., come reports of heavy damage to fruit trees and crops by the terrific winds that swept through the State.

SCHUYLKILL REGION.

POTTSVILLE, Pa., Aug. 30.—The storm here blew at a rate of 60 miles an hour. Rain fell in sheets during the entire time and streams are much swollen. Considerable damage has been done throughout the whole Schuylkill region, some houses having been unroofed and many small frame structures razed to the ground. Fruit trees were uprooted in the farming districts and the corn crop has suffered badly. Much damage was done to breakers and colliery buildings, and in the Shenandoah region several collieries are reported as drowned out.

LAST WEEK'S STORM.

Many Lives Lost on Land and Sea and Property Destroyed.

NEW YORK, Aug. 25.—The fishing schooners Empire State, with a crew of ten men, and Ella M. Johnson, with a caew of eight men, went down Wednesday night off Manasquan on the Jersey coast, and all on board were lost.

These two vessels were in company with the Chocorua at midnight when the storm struck them, and after beating around all night in some of the worse weather ever known off the coast, and with a loss of her captain and first mate, the Chocorua tied up, the only survivor of the three.

The storm struck the three vessels about midnight, and at 1 o'clock the Johnson disappeared. About half-past one, as near as can be calculated, Captain Perry and First Mate Joseph Francis, of the Chocorua, were swept overboard by a gigantic wave. The lights of the Empire State disappeared almost immediately afterwards, and at daybreak her masts were seen projecting out of the water about three feet.

The crew of the Chocorua say that no small boat could possibly live in the sea that was running at the time and the dories on board could have been of no possible use to the crews of the two vessels.

The captain of the Johnson was John Connors, and of the Empire State, Captain Ericson.

All of the boats were from New London and were owned by their respective captains.

SOUTHAMPTON, L. I., Aug. 25.—About 9 o'clock yesterday morning two vessels, a coal barge and a towing vessel were wrecked off the coast at this point, follow in the wake of the severe storm. Up to the present writing six men from the wrecked vessels have been washed ashore out of total crew of 21 men on both vessels.

NEW YORK, Aug. 25.—The storm of Wednesday night and yesterday morning was the severest known in years and did great damage for hundreds of miles around New York, especially along the New Jersey coast and on Long and Staten islands.

Reports by incoming steamboats, from the surrounding localities and resorts, show that the storm has played havoc with the small sailing craft, and that the shores are strewn with wrecks of schooners, yachts and tugs.

At Rockaway Beach the storm raised havoc with the frame hotels and cottages. Many of them were partially or wholly wrecked, but no loss of life has been reported. Over 300 feet of the iron pier was swept away and many roofs and chimneys blown off. The loss is estimated at between $10,000 and $15,000.

The marine railroad running to Manhattan Beach is totally washed out, shutting off this section of the island from communications with the West End, the Brighton Beach hotel grounds are wrecked and the lawn and walk completely gone. An idea of the height of the tide can be gained when it is shown that it swept up to the Electric railway tracks on Sea Breeze avenue, nearly an eighth of a mile from low water mark.

New Jersey.

The storm did thousands of dollars damage to farm crops in Central New Jersey. All the peach trees in the Hon. Wm. H. Grant's orchard at Middletown were blown down. Mr. Grant expected to pick over 5,000 baskets of peaches. The roads in some townships are impassable on account of the trees that lie across them and people are compelled to drive across the fields. A number of planted fields are badly damaged by washouts.

At Long Branch the famous old ocean iron pier is a thing of the past. The storm carried away fully four-fifths of it, and all that now remains is about 25 feet from the shore ont. A large portion of the pier was cast upon the beach just south of North Broadway and directly into Coroner Van Dyke's fish pond.

The two-masted fishing schooner Mary F. Kelly, of New York, Captain Chris Grattin, of Brooklyn, was wrecked at Asbury Park. Four of the crew of eleven men were drowned. The others were rescued by Captain Edwards, of the United States Life Saving Station at Deal Beach, and a volunteer crew of hotel guests.

At Asbury Park the greatest destruction is recorded. There Founder Bradley's famous board walk is almost a complete wreck. Every one of the large and small pavilions is more or less damaged, some of them being so completely demolished as to require entire rebuilding.

At Perth Amboy, N. J., the streets were literally filled with limbs of shade trees. The bulkheads along the water front were undermined and much of Front street was washed away. One hundred oyster skiffs and small boats were wrecked by the heavy sea. The sloop yacht Ida was driven ashore and will prove a total loss. James Wallace, who started across the bay just before the storm, has not been heard from and it is believed that he has been lost.

At Cape May, N. J., the lower deck of the ocean pier was washed away and much damage was done to the fishing fleet at Sewell's Point. Many trees were blown down and great damage was done to growing corn and fruit in the outlying country.

A Wilmington, Del., telegram says the loss to Delaware fruit growers was enormous. Thousands of baskets of peaches and bushels of pears and apples were blown down. The money loss to the farmers will be heavy.

New England.

New Haven's stately elms seemed to be a special mark for the storm. More than 300 were wrested from their places and toppled over and broken. The streets of the city in general resembled a forest. Street cars failed to run until 9:30, when the efforts of a large gang of street cleaners proved effectual. Two horses were killed by stepping on a live wire which the storm had torn down. The damage to the harbor is the greatest known in years. The oyster beds have especially suffered. They are thought to be completly banked in mud by the action of wind and wave and may prove a total loss. If the beds are a total loss the money damage will be many hundreds of thousands of dollars.

At Hartford, Conn., the wind blew over fifty miles an hour. The various drills at camp were given up and the men flocked down to the shore. All the small boats in the bay dragged anchors and came ashore. The Morton House pier was destroyed by the battering of a sloop against it. One large schooner was seen drifting and looked as if she had been deserted.

SHORT WORK OF SILVER

The House Declares for Unconditional Repeal.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—The House made short work of the silver question yesterday. Voting began on the Bland free coinage substitute at 12:12, and the 16 to 1 free coinage proposition was defeated — yeas, 123; nays, 225. The announcement of the vote was received with applause and some surprise at the majority against free coinage, it being nearly double the largest estimate made by the anti-silver committee.

Mr. Bland asked a yea and nay vote on the question of free coinage at the ratio of 17 to 1, and secured it. The result was yeas, 100; nays, 240.

The 18 to 1 free coinage amendment was rejected. Yeas, 102; nays, 239.

The vote on the 19 to 1 amendment was 237 to 105 against.

The slight gain made on the higher ratios as shown by the last two votes was not unexpected by some of the leaders, and it was the published impression of these that the ratio of 20 to 1, the next amendment offered by Mr. Bland, would poll the largest vote record in favor of free coinage. The result of the roll call was: Yeas, 110; nays, 222.

The amendment to re-enact the Bland-Allison act was defeated. Yeas, 136; nays, 213.

Then when all these propositions had been rejected a vote was taken on the adoption of the Wilson bill for the unconditional repeal of the purchasing clause of the Sherman act requiring the monthly purchase by the United States of $4,500,000 ounces of fine silver. This bill was passed by a vote of 240 to 110.

In one sense the voting in the House was uninteresting. When it was seen that the anti-silver men were in a strong majority upon the first vote taken, the galleries relapsed into their usual buzz of conversation and on the floor the victors and vanquished alike retired to the cloak rooms to fight the great battle over again in a genial mood.

The silver men felt chagrined at their overwhelming defeat but they took their overthrow philosophically and found in their late opponents men who were too generous to say ought of ungraciousness.

After Mr. Catchings had given notice that he would call up the House rules to-day, the House at 3:30 adjourned.

COLLISION ON THE HARLEM.

THE CHAMIOS.

On next Wednesday night, Sept. 6th, the opening of the regular season at the Opera House will take place. Manager Dentler has secured Mr. Paul Barnes, the best German Comedian now before the public, and his excellent company for the occasion.

The play in which Mr. Barnes appears is entitled "The Chamois Hunter," a German Comedy in four acts.

In speaking of the piece the Dramatic Mirror has to say:

The curtain has never been rung up on a better comedy than the "Chamois Hunter". It is the play of a life time full of human interest and human love ranging in the character from bright and innocent childhood to the full radiance of tender old age.

Depicting the life of a young mountaineer who from the depths of despair is raised to wealth and affluence. There is a self possessed villain, a little child of infantile beauty and angelic sweetness that go to make up part of this great story.

The Chamois Hunter as presented by Mr. Barnes and his excellent company is put upon the stage in a splendid manner. The scenery is entirely new and picturesque. The merit of the play is that it is full of comedy and sweet singing and has a series of those natural pictures and life like characters that hold the audience from beginning to end.

A game of ball was played Friday of last week between the Renovo and Bloomsburg Club resulting in a victory of 5 to 4 in favor of Renovo. We wish them success in their forthcoming fall and winter season and have nothing but kind words for them. —Bloomsburg Daily.

YONKERS, N. Y., Aug 28.—Mrs. Henry Ward Beecher celebrated her 82d birthday at the residence of her son, Col. Henry B. Beecher, of this city, Saturday. Only the immediate members of the family and grandchildren were present, but many messages of congratulation were received.

Good Bob White.

The male quail, or "Bob White," deserves honorable mention among gallinaceous birds because he is particularly good to his wife He always helps her to hatch her eggs, and if anything keeps her away will take the whole duty on himself. This is particularly attested by a writer quoted by Capt. Bendire in his "Life Histories of North American Birds." He says: "In June, 1886, while I was on a visit to Dr. J. M. Pickett, of Cedarville, Ala., he informed me of having seen a male Bob White incubating. He had visited the nest at various times on different days, and always found the male bird on the nest. Wishing to be an eye-witness of so interesting a sight, I rode several miles with the doctor to the nest. There we found Bob White faithfully warming his treasures, but not into life; the eggs were never hatched. Dr. Pickett frequently went to the nest until long after the period of incubation had elapsed, and finding that the eggs would not hatch, he destroyed them, to prevent the useless occupation of the nest by the male. The female had probably been dead some hours before the male found the nest deserted; hence the eggs cooled and would not hatch."

A Strange Lake in Africa.

Lake Assal, one of the finest salt lakes in the world, in the district of Obock, East Africa, only a few miles from the head of the Bay of Tadjouiah has been bought by Mr. Chefneux from the French government. All along the edge of the lake, which comprises only sixteen square miles, is a bed of nearly pure salt about a foot in thickness. The water of the lake is so surcharged with salt that it is impossible to sink in it. The bottom is apparently a bed of solid salt. The heavy waters lave the base of jagged and precipitous mountains which descend to the edge of the lake, making it almost impossible to travel around it. Mr. Chefneux will probably carry on his work by floating machinery on the lake and dredging in the salt bed at its bottom.

Governor Pattison has issued a pardon to E. P. Wilkinson, of Wilkesbarre, convicted in Luzerne county in June, 1889, of murder in the second degree and sentenced to five years in the Eastern penitentiary. Wilkinson had served four years in the army when a mere boy and was always a reputable citizen. For a number of years he was an ardent worker in the temperance cause and was most active in his opposition to granting licenses in that section of the city of Wilkesbarre in which he resided. In March, 1889, he attended the inauguration of President Harrison as a member of the National Guard. While there he got drunk and continued in occasional indulgence of liquor. On April 29, 1889, while going home drunk he was teased by a number of young men, and drawing his revolver he shot and killed Thomas Gallagher, aged nineteen years. He was convicted of murder in the second degree and sentenced to five years' imprisonment. His term would have expired in September and the pardon board believes he has been sufficiently punished.

The reputation of being a good fellow never helped a man at a bank.

Paradoxical as it may seem, it is always to a man's credit to pay cash.

It ought to give promise of rest to a standing army to be ordered to the seat of war.

Some liubs of the law never bracch out.

Another Letter to Women.

May 25, '92, Syracuse, N. Y

"Dear Madam:

"I want to tell you what your Vegetable Compound and Sanative Wash have done for me.

"I was so bad with falling of the womb and Leucorrhœa that I could not stand.

"I had doctored so much without benefit I was entirely discouraged. I expected to die.

"One evening I read in the 'Herald' about your medicine. I got some, and took 2 bottles of the Compound, and used one of the Sanative Wash.

"I am now well and strong, am never troubled with either of the complaints. If more women would use your Compound, there would be less suffering in the world." — Mrs. Ida Casler, 126 Olive St.

Parrot Knew Better.

The late Sir Henry Moncrieff had a parrot which was always present at family worship. In the morning Sir Henry followed the old Scottish custom of singing the metrical version of the Psalms straight through, two verses per day. The 119th Psalm, of course, took many days, and he always commenced by saying:

"Let us sing in the 119th Psalm."

At last the Psalm was finished, and the next day Sir Henry began: "Let us sing the 120th Psalm."

"Let us sing," said the parrot, firmly, "in the 119th Psalm."

PRESIDENT CLEVELAND SUBMITS TO THE KNIFE.

AN OPERATION PERFORMED UPON HIM BY WHICH PART OF HIS JAW WAS REMOVED.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 29.—Widespread interest has been excited by the Press' publication this morning of a story from its reliable New York correspondent concerning President Cleveland's mysterious illness. Heartfelt sympathy for the sufferer from a disease the fearful nature of which is only hinted at has been expressed on all sides and everywhere is heard the wish that the outcome may be more favorable than can be hoped for from the tenor of his story.

The correspondent says:

It is useless longer to conceal the fact that Mr. Cleveland is a sick man, perhaps a very sick man, and that the physicians have fear that mortal disease is lurking in his system, notwithstanding the heroic efforts of surgery to remove it during the Summer. Secretary Lamont, who was here last week and whose anxiety was impressive and pitiful for his friends to see, said with something of the tone of sadness in his voice that there would be and could be no attempt on the part of the administration to make any interference in the local politics of New York, and when asked why this was so, Lamont replied, saying it to Colonel Monroe: "The President is a sick man, how sick we cannot tell."

The news which is here reported for the first time has been received from those whose sources of information are so accurate as to justify, even to compel, its publication.

FROM TRUSTWORTHY SOURCES.

It comes from men, some of whom saw and had part in what is described. For the sake of the hope which the entire country will entertain that the worst is over, it may be best not to report with absolute fidelity what the physicians saw and what they feared; it may be enough to say that at the present time there is hope that the marvels of surgery have been sufficient to meet and master the trouble, whatever it may be.

When Mr. Cleveland again became President last March he seemed to be in the best of health, although it was plain to him that he had less vigor, a diminished power of maintaining sustained efforts and hearing with prolonged fatigue than was the case when he first, in the prime of his manhood, became President of the United States.

He seemed to bear the strain, however, with much of ease and comparative comfort, having from experience learned how best to meet and fend off those early embarrassments and pressure which await a newly inaugurated President.

But there was a mental strain, one that called for much greater draft upon his vital resources than any which office seekers entailed, created by the sudden, overwhelming and extraordinary financial situation.

It may be that this mental strain developed, if it did not create, that disease with which the physicians have been contending. They know only what they have seen and what their instruments have done.

HIS SUFFERING CONCEALED.

It was in the late Spring that Mr. Cleveland began to be tormented with pain which seemed to proceed from a tooth. He endured it like a hero.

He concealed his suffering from his family, and it is probable that no one, excepting Secretary Lamont, knew that he had physical torture as well as mental anxiety to contend with. The pain did not yield to local and usual treatment. When the first careful examination was made, or when the suspicion was created that this trouble was due to no exposure of a dental nerve or to any usual disease of the teeth, my informants do not know; they do know that there was a time, shortly before the President issued his call for the extraordinary session of Congress, when it was determined that an operation was inevitable, how grave or extensive could not at first be determined.

It is probable that the decision to perform the operation while the President was upon Mr. Benedict's yacht was due to several reasons—one, perhaps, that the family, being in ignorance, might not be overwhelmed by anxiety and suspense; another, that if the operation was performed with surgical success the country might not be alarmed.

Mr. Cleveland, with Mr. Lamont, left Washington quite suddenly upon the day when the call for an extra session was issued.

SUBMITTED CALMLY TO THE KNIFE.

Arrangements were made in this city with celerity, and Mr. Cleveland was met when he arrived here by Dr. Bryant and another physician, and Dr. Hasbrouck, all of whom boarded the yacht with him.

Mr. Cleveland, almost as soon as he boarded the yacht, retired to the stateroom and fell into a heavy slumber. The intimation was made to me that he might have received a hypodermic injection; certainly it was deemed desirable that he should enjoy prolonged sleep before he yielded himself to the surgeon, and he did sleep until well into the next day.

When the time came the President of the United States submitted himself to the surgeon as calmly, as gently, and as willingly as though he were merely lying down for brief slumber. Yet he knew that possibly from that operation he might not recover, and that it might be before many hours had passed that the people of the United States would be overwhelmed by a sudden sorrow, which is, perhaps, the most grievous of any excepting war that the country has hitherto been compelled to endure.

He knew that a wife, beloved of all the people, was waiting in eager expectancy for his coming, but he did not know nor did the surgeons what might be the revelation of the next few moments for her. Those who have seen Mr. Cleveland in trying emergencies have recalled and of his emotions he is. His physicians have thus seen him before, but they were amazed by the tender confidence and the resignation to whatever might happen with which he composed himself for their administrations.

It was deemed advisable to use gas as an anæsthetic rather than ether, because the operation was to be such as would entail severe hemorrhages, which might possibly lead to the flow of blood into the windpipe. By using gas recovery would be almost instantaneous, whereas ether entails much slower recovery, so that in case of such a hemorrhage there might be suffocation. The President yielded easily to the anæsthetic, and the surgeons began their task of awful responsibility. The operation did not require very long, but it entailed the cutting away of a considerable part of the upper jaw bone upon one side, the instrument boring through the bone and tissue as far as the orbital plate.

The operation was thorough. The physicians believe that they have removed all of the diseased tissue and bone, although in doing it the removal of so much of the jaw as that was entailed. Of course in doing this teeth were extracted, so that the physicians were truthful when they afterward said that the president had had some teeth pulled out while he was on Mr. Benedict's yacht.

Such an operation as this entails profuse hemorrhage, and after the

the surgeons speedily dressed the wound and then, to use a professional term, "plugged" it. That is to say, they packed the cavity made by the knives and saws with antiseptic cotton, so that it might be healed speedily and so as to prevent great loss of blood. It is the truth to say that there were suspicious that the disease might be of that malignant type which is called sarcoma, another form of the same disease which brought General Grant, with beautiful pathos, to his deathbed. There is now encouragement that it may not be that trouble, that the complaint, whatever it is, is not beyond the power of surgical science to control.

Mr. Cleveland recovered from the shock even better than the physicians had dared to hope he would. He was kept in bed, so treated that he slept most of the time and after four days' absence, during which the country was wondering where he was, it was deemed safe and advisable to permit him to land at Gray Gables. The treatment indicated was absolute rest and such mental diversion as Mr. Cleveland's favorite recreation, fishing, afforded.

It became necessary, however, for the president to return to Washington, and that journey and the necessity of living in Washington during the heated spell gave Mr. Cleveland's physician very great anxiety.

PHYSICIANS NOT DECIDED.

It was, of course, noticed that Dr. Bryant who was constantly at Gray Gable, accompanied Mr. Cleveland on his journey to Washington, and was with him much of the time there.

It has been said that the extraordinary and unexplained departure of Mr. Cleveland from Washington was not the act of a president who realized the desperate situation of the country, but Mr. Cleveland did realize it. He almost rebelled at the command of his physician. He knew his departure would be misconstrued, but he also knew that not from him at least or those around him could the reason for that departure be set forth.

The physicians, who have been talking among themselves about this sorrow, are not yet decided what it was which, lurking in the president's blood, caused disease of tissue and bone which had eaten up through the roof of the mouth to the orbital plate. The quick recovery from the operation gives, as each day passes, increased hope that it is not that dread and mysterious enemy which physicians scarcely dare to name. There have been some fears that it was; there is even now anxiety, which is daily growing less and less, lest it may recur and require the knife and heroism again.

But there is more encouragement this week than there was last, far more than was the case when the president, being warned, departed from Washington to the seashore again.

Dr. Kilmer & Co:—"I had been troubled for eight years with stomach and heart difficulties.

I lived mostly on milk, as every-thing I ate hurt me so. My kidneys and liver were in a terrible state. Could neither sleep or eat. I had been treated by the best Chicago doctors without any benefit whatever. As a last resort I tried your SWAMP-ROOT, and now I can eat anything, no matter what. Nothing hurts me, and can go to bed and get a good night's sleep. SWAMP-ROOT cured me.

Any one doubting this statement can write, I will gladly answer." Mrs. German Miller, Dec. 20th, 1892. Springport, Mich.

Had Torpid Liver For 14 Years. Bilious all the Time.

DEAR SIRS:—"I have been troubled with Torpid Liver for 14 years and gone through courses of bilious fever; many times it has been impossible for me to do any kind of labor. Dr. Kilmer's SWAMP-ROOT was first recommended to me by Holthouse, Blackburn & Co., (Druggists) Decatur, Ind. After taking one bottle I was uncertain whether I was really deriving any benefit or not; after taking the second bottle, however, I found that my health was improving and I continued until I had taken 6 bottles. I can now cheerfully recommend SWAMP-ROOT to every one who has torpid liver, for it has completely cured me."
